

in this issue:

Comment	3
Are the Olympics really good for tourism?
Markets
The Asian market in Europe	4
A sharp difference in trends from one city to another
Profiles
London	5
After two years of decline, short-term forecasts are still fairly gloomy
Domestic market failed to save the day
Holiday travel hit hardest, but prospects for business travel looking up
Little change in key source markets, but younger visitors stay away
Much-needed boost for marketing and promotions
Infrastructure developments slow to materialise ...
... but a major convention centre now looks more likely
Malta	11
A much better year, thanks largely to the UK market
Unhealthy dependence on the UK
Diversification has reduced seasonality problems
Hawaii	15
Tourism is big business, especially for Honolulu
Visitor spending rises faster than arrivals
Cruise ship business continues to increase
Australia	17
Sydney attracts 56% of all foreign visitors to Australia ...
... thanks in no small part to its MICE market appeal
Improved hotel performance in first half 2003
Comparative Trends
BAA's UK airports	19
Not a bad first six months
City Statistics	20
Graz leverages its year as European Cultural Capital	