

in this issue:

Comment	3
European cities could teach their NTOs a thing or two
Markets
2003 trends	4
International markets outperform domestic tourism in Europe The USA and Japan prove to be the weakest markets – yet again
Profiles
Barcelona	6
Healthy growth, but was it really that good? Hotel investments will lead to overcapacity Many Catalans still to be won over by the merits of the 2004 Forum
Copenhagen	8
Copenhagen named one of the hottest congress cities in the world MICE business boosted by big increase in hotel capacity A disappointing 2003, but a much better year lies ahead
New York City	10
International arrivals still below their 2000 peak Leisure outperforms business travel Cautious optimism for 2004
Macau	12
A tough year, but nonetheless one of growth China increasingly dominates the market Balancing business with leisure – and, of course, gaming
Comparative Trends
Indian hotels	15
India's 5 million arrivals target finally within reach Indian hotels still largely control their own distribution
Hotel performance worldwide	17
Venice ousts Geneva from top revpar spot Kuwait City reports the highest occupancy Milan enters top ten in terms of ADR
City Statistics
European cities	19
Compiling better and more frequent data ... ... but it is important to read the footnotes	